G. O. P. REORGANIZES AS HUSTON QUILTS

Party Chieftains Name Fess
as Successor and Plan Campaign.

BY D. HAROLD OLIVER.
WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—(AP)—With a final blast at his opponents, Claudius H. Huston, of Tennessee, today formally ended his brief but tumultuous career as chairman of the republican national committee, and a new slate of officers, headed by Senator Fess, of Ohio, and Robert H. Lucas, of Kentucky, was installed to take immediate charge of the party's fall campaign.

Huston, and Lucas, commissioner of internal revenue, was appointed "executive director." Changing plans at the last minute, the party chieftains also filled the vacancy in the national committee secretaryship, naming George DeB. Keim, a retired barman of Edgewater Park, N. J., to succeed Representative Franklin Fort, of the same state, who resigned several months ago.

Two new national committeemen also were chosen. They were Ernest Lee Jahncke, assistant secretary of the navy, to succeed the late Emilie Kuntz as committeeman from Louisiana, and Ezra R. Whitla, coeditor of the "Idaho Statesman," to fill the place as committeeman from Idaho from which Senator Thomas resigned.

The reorganization of the party machinery was effected at a brief, harmonious meeting of the executive committee of the national organization. Twenty-two members were present or represented by proxies.

Huston made his last act, the form of a statement to the press after he had submitted his promised resignation to the committee without comment.

ment. He charged he had been persecuted almost from the time he took over the chairmanship, adding that, while he was conscious of his own integrity, he preferred to put the interest of the party above personal consideration and resign.

"In the past," he said, "it has been the policy of the party leaders to maintain a solid front when under the enemy fire, but as it has not been the policy in the present case, I have reached the conclusion, putting the interest of the republican party ahead of personal consideration, that I should tender my resignation, for I am wholly unwilling to be accused of imposing burdens personal to me upon the party during the coming senatorial and congressional campaign."

No Risk.
"I am sure that no such risk exists," he added, "but rather than incur the charge of creating it, I prefer to withdraw."

The Tennessee said his withdrawal would give the party a opportunity to select a leader "free from the present factional opposition, and will permit me, without embarrassing others, to pursue a course that will insure in the minds of the republicans of the country my right to their continued esteem and confidence."

James Francis Burke, general counsel, said the selection of Fess was permanent and would not require ratification of the full committee as had been the impression up to the hour of today's meeting. He said the executive committee had full authority to name a permanent head of the national organization, but some leaders still differ with him on that point.

Both Fess and Lucas were called into the meeting after their selections had been made and each made a brief address. The entire group had lunch with President Hoover afterward. Plans for the approaching campaign were not discussed, it was said, nor was the statement of Horace A. Mann, President Hoover's southern campaign manager in 1928, asserting he and his followers would stand for no "outside interference" in the conduct of southern political affairs. In a talk with newspapermen Fess said he would be "fairly active" in the campaign but would leave much of the details to Lucas. He predicted the republicans would retain control of the senate and house.

Off Year.
"While this is an off year during which the national committee is not usually expected to be active," he said, "the world depression, which has not affected our country as much as others, will cause some disaffection. This will necessitate a campaign of education so that the public may be informed. Unless future developments warrant it, the new chairman said, the meeting of the national committee will be called in the near future. Meanwhile, Fess will take an eight-day vacation on the Great Lakes, beginning next week.

Burke moved acceptance of Huston's resignation. His motion, including a vote of thanks for the Tennessee's services to the party, was approved unanimously.

Fess also will serve as ex-officio chairman of the executive committee according to custom, although Lucas will be the actual head as "executive director."

Keim, the new secretary, was a Hoover delegate to the Kansas City convention and has long been a contributor to the party's campaign chests. His business has been conducted in Philadelphia while he made his home in nearby New Jersey. He is the New Jersey member of the Port of New York Authority.

The mild mannered Huston was unusually vigorous in criticism of his opponents.

"No man in political life has ever been subjected to more unjust and unwarranted attacks," he said. He added that "every accusation made by the senate lobby committee" regarding his handling of funds for the Tennessee River Improvement Association, his former position as chairman, "was so completely refuted that its final report to the senate charged no wrongdoing and the opposing party, since then, has found no advantage in pursuing me further."

122D WILL STAGE INITIAL DRILL TODAY

BY W. S. GRIFFIN,
Staff Correspondent.

CAMP FOSTER, JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Aug. 7.—(Special).—Much of the first week of training of the 122nd infantry now is in the background and a majority of members of the regiment are planning week-end fishing parties, returning to homes in Atlanta or preparing to visit some of the many beaches near by. Today brought the close of the first and with the publication of marks came enthusiastic expressions of officers of the regiment and army instructors over the high record attained in marksmanship.

A switch in the training program which will give the men close order drill on Friday has been arranged, this part of the schedule first having been set for Monday of next week. Owing to some slight changes in parades and formations for next week it was decided to give the men Monday's schedule on Friday, when the first taste of drilling since the regiment entered camp will be handed out.

Range work the past four days has not been hampered by the hot weather and much has been accomplished in preliminary training in the use of rifles, pistols and machine guns, according to Colonel G. P. O'Keefe.

"We are much pleased with the early progress of our campaign this year," Colonel O'Keefe said Thursday night, "and we are hoping to be able to return year after year. The compactness of the camp and its general arrangement are particularly well adapted for our troops and both officers and men are glad to be here."

The men already are accustomed to arising at 5 o'clock sharp, (4 o'clock Atlanta time) and a 15-minute setting-up exercise is given the entire regiment. This is followed by preparation for breakfast and arrangement of tents with the morning meal at 6 o'clock. Actual work for the day begins at 7 o'clock and continues until 11:30, being resumed at 2:30. This period gives every one time for lunch and an hour's rest. The afternoon program ends at 5 o'clock and the evening meal is served at 6 o'clock. During next week, however, actual military training except for a regimental parade at 5 o'clock in the afternoon will end at noon, the remainder of the day, except for the parade, to be given the men for recreational features, organized athletics, and other diversions.

Pope Pius Moves To Counteract 'Proselyting'

VATICAN CITY, Aug. 7.—(AP)—The pope, in a personal statement, published in the Osservatore Romano, today announced formation of a "pontifical organization for preservation of the faith and for the provision of new churches in Rome" designed to combat "Protestant proselyting" in and around Rome.

The announcement in "motu proprio"—that is, a document made by the pontiff himself—recalls his protest against Protestant activities in an allocation at a secret consistory held on June 30.

The new "defense organization" will have a cardinal for its president, who will maintain contact with Cardinal Pacelli, vicar general of the diocese of Rome, to keep him informed and exchange useful ideas.

The new organization will be divided into two sections, one for "protection of the faith, in addition to the organization now devoted to that work and bearing that name instituted by Pope Leo XIII, which will extend its operations."

The second section will be devoted to providing more churches wherever needed, reorganizing parishes, regrouping parishioners, the demolition of old and unsuitable church edifices, and the question of dealing with the civil authorities for necessary authorization.

The document ends with an invocation of divine favor and imparts the apostolic benediction on all engaged in or aiding the enterprise.

A brief issued by the office of the secretary of state named Cardinal Marchetti Selvaggiani president of the organization.

Herrera Pledges Alliance to America

BOGOTA, Colombia, Aug. 7.—(AP)—Dr. Enrique Olaya Herrera, the afternoon became the 51st president of the republic of Colombia.

While the enthusiastic populace of this mountain city celebrated with fiestas, the former Colombian minister to the United States swore "faithfully to uphold the constitution."

His term of office will be four years.

Dr. Olaya took the oath of office and then delivered his inaugural address, in which he pleaded for closer co-operation between Colombia and the United States.

"Enjoying a geographical situation which is almost privileged," he said, "we must aspire to be in America a factor of collaboration and serve whenever possible the cause of co-operation among the different nations of our continent."

"Several years' experience permitted me to know closely that nation and to acquire by contact with its eminent and leading men the conviction that they wish, as we wish, a policy of mutual co-operation, of ample and friendly understanding, which, directed with sincerity and decisiveness, will be translated into great reciprocal benefits."

"The administration inaugurated today wishes to serve frankly and loyally that policy in the course of our international life."

ATTORNEY CONFESSES KILLING YOUNG WIFE

Prominent Amarillo Man
Tells Police of Fixing
Death Trap.

STINNETT, Texas, Aug. 7.—(AP)—Requesting that he be hurried "through to the electric chair," A. D. Payne, Amarillo, Texas, attorney, today was said by officers to have confessed to having placed sticks of dynamite in his automobile, their explosion killing his wife and maiming his nine-year-old son.

Murder charges were preferred against the lawyer following his arrest late Tuesday. Officers alleged the dynamite plot was evolved by Payne because of his love for Mrs. Verona Payne, his former secretary. A statement by the woman asserting Payne had made ardent love to her led to his arrest.

Payne, who is the father of three children, declared his one great regret was that he did not have a chance to commit suicide before he was arrested. He said he had made two plans to kill himself in such a way that his death would appear an accident.

"I wanted my children to collect the full insurance I carry," he was quoted as saying, "I have about $40,000 on my life, counting the double indemnity they would get if I were killed accidentally. I have done this to avoid striking a blow at the only thing I can do for them is to let them have what insurance I can."

Payne, according to mayor Ernest O. Thompson, of Amarillo, today detailed his plans for doing away with his wife and revealed a plot to kill her with a charge from a shotgun three months before she finally perished in an explosion that dismembered her body.

Three sticks of dynamite, it was said, were in an open container with water and phosphorus placed under the driver's seat of the family automobile. Payne then left the car for his wife and walked to his office. He said he knew that when the water splashed out, the phosphorus would ignite and set the explosive off.

He also was quoted as admitting placing a loaded shotgun in a closet of his home in such manner it would go off when his wife opened the door. The gun was discharged but Mrs. Payne escaped with only minor wounds on one hand. Payne has practiced law in Amarillo for about six years, studying during spare moments while attending the West Texas State Teachers' College at Canyon, where he met Miss Eva Johnson, his wife. The Payne children include two girls and a boy. The boy, who was named for his father, was killed with Mrs. Payne June 27, when the explosion occurred.

HEFLIN IS INJURED IN WRECK OF AUTO

DECATUR, Ala., Aug. 7.—(AP)—United States Senator J. Thomas Hefflin, of Alabama, suffered bruises and cuts and a sprained wrist near here today and three members of his party were cut and bruised as their automobile crashed into a telephone pole to avoid striking a heavily loaded log truck that drove onto the Bee Line highway from a side road.

Senator Hefflin and his party were brought to Decatur in a passing bus and three of them were transferred to ambulances and taken to a hospital. The senator, however, went to a hotel where a physician attended him.

Others injured were: J. Thomas Hefflin, Jr., the senator's son, a deep cut on the forehead and minor cuts and bruises.

Walter Brown, of Washington, a member of the staff of the Fellowship Forum, cuts on the temple and cheek. Perry Schussler, Lafayette, Ala., driver of the car and nephew of Senator Hefflin, cut and bruised.

None of the party was believed seriously hurt.

Senator Hefflin told newspapermen the truck drove onto the highway without warning and there were only two courses open to Schussler, whom he described as a "careful driver," either crash into the truck loaded with logs or smash into a telephone pole and the driver followed the latter course.

The senator was thrown from the machine and badly shaken up. Senator Hefflin was en route from Decatur to Anniston where he had a speaking engagement for 3 o'clock this afternoon.

Brown has been accompanying Senator Hefflin on his tour of the state in his campaign as an independent for re-election to the seat he holds in the senate. Senator Hefflin was excluded from the democratic primary next Tuesday under a resolution of the state democratic executive committee, which barred as candidates all persons who failed to support the democratic presidential ticket in 1928.

Bernard Shaw Signs First Movie Contract

LONDON, Aug. 7.—(AP)—George Bernard Shaw today signed his first movie contract, permitting "How He Lied to Her Husband," a play, to be produced as a talking picture by a British company, remarking that his other plays would follow suit.

"I signed the contract because I want to make some money," he told reporters.

"I am afraid the poor old theater is done for. It may survive as a place where people are taught to act, but apart from that there will be nothing but talkies soon. All my plays will be made into talkies."

Best Known Way To Heal Toe Itch (Athlete's Foot)

This condition of the feet, cracked skin between and around the toes; inflammation and severe itching; dress in which blisters and burning, is now known to be caused by a germ, or fungus growth.

The only way to get relief is to kill these fungus germs, which you can now do with a pleasant-colored, delightful-to-use ointment, known as "Tetterine."

Tennessee Shooting Takes Second Victim

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Aug. 7.—Death last night of Mrs. J. M. Posey, 57-year-old mother of six, marked the second fatality from gun shots fired Sunday night by her son-in-law, Fred Cornelison. The woman's husband died Tuesday.

J. Bowman, mechanic, the third victim, is in a critical condition in a local hospital, it is said by attendants to have little chance to recover.

The Poseys, settled on their front porch with four of their children about them, were shot when Cornelison, according to his statement to authorities, came seeking his estranged wife to inform her he was preparing to sue for divorce. Bowman, said by Cornelison in his statement to have been friendly with Mrs. Cornelison was shot during an encounter as Cornelison was on his way to the Posey home. Cornelison claims in his statement to authorities that he fired upon Posey and Bowman only after they had fired at him.

Statements by Mr. and Mrs. Posey before they died are held by the officials, who decline to reveal their contents.

Cornelison is held without bond pending preliminary hearing August 12.

REDUCED EXPENSES ADVOCATED BY RIVERS

Statement Calls on Governor To Tell Source of Fund for Tax Experts.

Former State Senator E. D. Rivers, candidate for governor, Thursday joined the other four candidates in the race in suggesting plans for the meeting of the state's financial crisis, when he issued a statement advocating the calling of an extra session of the legislature to reduce the expenses of the state government.

The statement called upon Governor Hardman to "tell the people of the state who it was that promised this fund to hire these foreign experts" to investigate the state's tax situation and added that if the governor did not give such information he would.

The statement is as follows:

To the people of Georgia:
While I disagree with the theory that the payment of the deficit now existing in the state treasury is the outstanding issue of this campaign, I do believe that it is one of the issues. For instance, I consider among other things the question of a permanent tax system is considerably more important than the solution of a temporary deficit.

In determining the question of paying off the deficit which now exists we invade the field of the general assembly. It was within the power of the governor through the exercise of the authority and power given him by the constitution to have prevented a deficit by the use of the veto.

It was within the power of the governor through his authority of signing checks upon the state treasury to have paid off the common schools, the old soldiers and the needs of the insane asylum first and let such things as repairing the capital building at an expense of a quarter of a million dollars, erecting additions, building a new state house, etc., wait.

It was within the power of the governor by the use of his check signing authority to force a program of strict economy in the various departments and have affected a saving, through reduction both in salaries and expenses and in number of employees.

Since the governor has not exercised any of his powers and authority along the aforementioned lines, he has not only allowed a deficit to accumulate but has paid every one and everything else ahead of the school teachers, old soldiers and the insane asylum. He has exhausted his borrowing power in addition to depleting the treasury. Having failed to guard the purse strings of the state himself, he now has the situation in such shape that he and his candidate for governor are helpless to handle it and must rely solely upon the legislature.

Of course, the governor can make recommendations to the general assembly and if he could and would cooperate with them his recommendations, if sound, would be put into effect. It has been the experience in past years, however, that the legislature has resented the governor undertaking to dictate a program of legislation and likewise has resented dictation on the part of committees, commissions, boards, bureaus and foreign experts.

In view of the fact that the most necessary of our institutions are the ones which have permitted to go unpaid, it is imperative that relief be given them at once and not wait until 1932 as provided by the Hardman-Carwell proposal. Had he let matters stand as they are, it would have been possible, probably, to have carried the deficit along until the next regular meeting of the general assembly, but since he has chosen to make the situation acute by leaving unpaid the three major imports, the only way to properly solve the question is:

Let the governor immediately call the legislature into extraordinary session to reduce the departmental boards, bureaus and commissions of the state government from the present 80-odd to 14 and put each department and institution on a two-year fiscal economy, which I advocated two years ago as well as the solution of a permanent tax system.

This will result in a saving of more than $1,000,000 a year. Submit to the people in the general election to be held on the second Monday in November of this year a constitutional amendment increasing the governor's borrowing power sufficient only to take care of the present deficit and to be repaid from the aforementioned savings. This will not include power to issue any state bonds or debentures.

Originals of an amendment to extraordinary session of the legislature but the condition of the state is now in a state of emergency that drastic action must be taken.

The same principles that apply to the preservation of private property must be applied to the state's affairs as to be preserved and the same principles must be applied to the state's affairs as to be preserved and the same principles must be applied to the state's affairs as to be preserved.

By this means, by January 1, 1931, all the state institutions will be paid and the state can start the new year with a clean slate; and from the savings affected by their retrenchment policy retire the indebtedness. Under this plan the state will not lose any of its federal aid money, whereas under the Hardman-Carwell plan it will take away from the road building program from $750,000 to $1,000,000 per year.

Tax Already Collected.

If Carwell would tell the whole truth he would be compelled to say that the tax for the present year has already been collected and spent and before the legislature meets in 1931, all the state institutions will have been collected and spent. The legislature of 1931 will have to change the law to authorize the tax in that year to be so diverted, whereas under my plan, the government will not lose any of its federal aid within five days. The legislature could act quickly.

The amendment could be submitted to the people on the second Monday in November and be ratified at that time and the governor would immediately exercise the power and authority to borrow this need money and by January 1, 1931, the school teachers, old soldiers and the insane asylum and other institutions could be paid.

The legislature can reduce the government's expenses and if this is done the state will for the first time embark on a policy of retrenchment so long needed and which I have so long advocated.

When the truth is known about the Macdonald plan, the purpose of the plan as stated in press dispatches, to consider ways and means for working out this need money and by January 1, 1931, the school teachers, old soldiers and the insane asylum and other institutions could be paid.

It is the same crowd that promised Dr. Hardman if he would not call an extraordinary session recently that they would finance the survey upon which he has now embarked. I now call on the governor to tell the people of the state who it was that promised this fund to hire these foreign experts. If he does not do this, then I must in fairness to the people, tell them myself.

CANDIDATES URGE STATE ECONOMIES

their opponents, in order to lay special stress upon the respective methods they are advocating for the untangling of the state's finances.

In the senatorial race, both Senator Harris and former Governor Slaton continued their heated attacks on each other on Thursday. Slaton in a speech at Dawsonville criticized Harris for reversing his position on issues, while Harris, in a speech at Franklin, renewed his charges that Slaton is making use of a large "slush" fund. Slaton also was lambasted in a statement issued from Harris headquarters in Atlanta as having a public record lacking in service to the people. The statement also claimed that Slaton would not carry more than five of the 161 counties in the state.

C. B. Allen, editor of the Moultrie Observer, was announced Thursday as the manager of the Holder campaign for governor.

Race for Senate Continues Heated

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Senator William J. Harris addressed the citizens of Heard county at a barbecue and rally at Franklin, Thursday, while his opponent for the nomination as United States senator in the September primary, John M. Slaton, spoke at Dawsonville.

Slaton said in part:

"Your senior senator, Mr. Harris, is a prohibitionist today, but those who may support him on that account need not be surprised if he turns up later as an anti-prohibitionist."

"A senator who will reverse his position and abandon his convictions on an issue as fundamental and far-reaching as America's foreign policy, thereby convicting himself of such utter instability as to preclude reliance upon him where other issues are concerned."

Harris has "recanted" his position relative to the League of Nations, Slaton said, but "still favors entering the World Court, unless his position on that issue has been likewise reversed in the last 24 hours."

Slaton is opposed to America's entry in either the League of Nations or the World Court.

Statement from Harris.

Senator Harris, in a statement issued from his headquarters, called upon ex-Governor Slaton to explain his "lack of record" in public office.

"Mr. Slaton has never yet stated in print or on the platform one single thing he ever accomplished during the 14 years he held office in Georgia," the statement said.

"It is a matter of common knowledge," the statement continued, "that he lobbied before the legislature, seeking favors for the big interests which he always represented, antagonizing every constructive measure for providing the means to maintain the institutions of the state, the Confederate veterans and their widows and the teachers in the common schools of Georgia."

"He can not run from this record. Nor has he ever attempted to explain why he voted against the disfranchisement of the negroes in Georgia when the constitutional amendment was before the legislature."

He fought and voted against state-wide prohibition. He never espoused the cause of a great law benefiting the common people. Why is Mr. Slaton silent on his record? . . .

Harris' headquarters also expressed confidence that Slaton will not

Carswell Raps Plans Of Other Candidates

George H. Carswell, candidate for governor, in a speech here tonight attacked the plans proposed by his opponents to pay the debts due by the state, and stated that the original plan of his was the most practical yet suggested, and urged the people to rally to his support.

Carswell said the debt was the result of appropriations of the 1927 legislature, being in excess of the income, and stated that Ed Rivers, chairman of the senate appropriations committee and that Dick Russell, as speaker of the house, cast the deciding vote in the bill's favor, by breaking a tie in the house.

"Mr. Holder is also advocating," he declared, "that the debt of twenty-five millions of dollars be created, which is owed to the counties which loaned his body money, be repaid, but he makes no suggestion as to where the money is to come from. In other words, it is pure political soap to say the debts should be paid, and to fail to say where the money is coming from."

"Yet in the face of this record, Mr. Holder has the nerve to say the road board should not be crippled by my plan, when at least fourteen millions of dollars would still be available to the school book trust, the state police, the state debts to the teachers, veterans and institutions are being paid."

Carswell ridiculed the suggestion of R. Russell to discount the rentals of $20,000 a year from the Henry Grady hotel, to pay the debts, saying it would take the income from this hotel for a period of 250 years to yield five millions of dollars.

"Mr. Russell also wants to discount the W. & A. income, which has already been sold up to 1936. He talks like he is representing some discount firm when he advocates hocking all of the state's property."

W. & A. Property
Sufficient--Perry

PORT VALLEY, Ga., Aug. 7.—(Special.)—James A. Perry, in a speech delivered here this afternoon, explained in detail his plan of utilizing state-owned railroad property in Atlanta and Chattahoochee in paying the state's past-due debts. He made it clear that he only referred to property that was in no way essential to the operation of the state road, or that ever would be. Continuing, he said:

"In offering a solution of the present disgraceful condition of state finances we must take into consideration the fact that this condition has been brought about during the last 10 years, during which time Richard B. Russell, Ed Rivers and George Carswell, all candidates for governor, claim to have been men of standing and influence in the general assembly. Russell, in fact, was speaker of the last house and it was under his leadership that the tremendous appropriation bill was voted. He voted for it, himself. Why, then, should he dodge and squirm in his effort to avoid responsibility for it? Why should Rivers and Carswell try to avoid responsibility for their legislative sins?"

"No Georgia worthy of the name will object to any sacrifice necessary to raise the money to pay these debts. Those of you who have followed my speeches in the earlier part of this campaign will recall that I have consistently advocated the use of any ZEBULON, Ga., Aug. 7.—Richard B. Russell, Jr., in an address here Thursday asserted that the state must adopt a program of future progress and economy as well as take steps to pay the present indebtedness.

"In every speech I have made during the campaign I have declared that the state must pay the indebtedness to the schools, the pensioners and the sanitariums," said Mr. Russell. "And in my administration they will be promptly paid without crippling and delaying highway construction or reviving the agitation for state bonds. I shall continue to wage an aggressive fight to break the grip of the school book trust, the state police, the state debts to the teachers, veterans and institutions are being paid."

Carswell ridiculed the suggestion of R. Russell to discount the rentals of $20,000 a year from the Henry Grady hotel, to pay the debts, saying it would take the income from this hotel for a period of 250 years to yield five millions of dollars.

"Mr. Russell also wants to discount the W. & A. income, which has already been sold up to 1936. He talks like he is representing some discount firm when he advocates hocking all of the state's property."

"When we beat both of the old cliques of politicians who have used our government as a plaything and a prize to fight over we will revise our system of government and abolish all useless political jobs which have been supported by the taxpayers but used to reward leaders within the old factions for political services."

"We must carry on a program of rapid highway construction and complete a paved, all-weather, permanent road in every county in Georgia. We must have a progressive administration of harmony and accord between the governor and the legislature which has been impossible under the factional system."

Allen To Manage
Campaign of Holder

John N. Holder, candidate for governor, in a statement issued Thursday, announced that C. B. Allen, editor of the Moultrie Observer, had accepted the management of his campaign.

In his statement, Holder said: "Mr. Allen, in young manhood, established the Moultrie Observer for more than 20 years has been in the forefront of all the fights for progress in his section and his paper has been a wonderful factor in the development of his community.

"Mr. Allen began his career in the campaign and is known widely throughout Georgia.

"Mr. Allen is probably best known through his activities in behalf of education and highways.

"He is a Christian layman and has been active in the religious movements of his section.

"I regard it as a peculiarly fortunate to have Mr. Allen head the campaign."

Sam King, convicted of murder in York county in 1926 and sentenced to serve the remainder of his life inside prison walls, is the hero, John Middaugh, notorious Michigan bandit, is the villain.

The attempted escape occurred yesterday afternoon. Wednesday is a half-holiday for the penitentiary inmates and Middaugh took advantage of the lapse of routine work to hide in the prison laundry.

With a hammer, a chisel and a sharp piece of steel, he proceeded to dig through the 18-inch wall.

He was outside, when King, whose duties as a trusty truck driver permit him to leave the prison alone, saw Middaugh and demanded to know what he was doing.

Middaugh did not reply but took to his heels. King gave chase, overtook him and held him until guards arrived.

King's first capture occurred March 1 when he discovered W. S. Rivers in a drain pipe near the prison. He is also credited with being instrumental in capturing Pete Hollis, an escaped prisoner, whom he saw in Columbia on one of his trips as truck driver. Hollis was seized later on the information given by King.

Dirigibles of Future
Expected To Be Larger

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—(UN)—Naval air officers concurred today in the opinion of the English lighter than air craft expert, Major G. H. Scott, supervisor of the R-100 flight, that for practical commercial purposes the future dirigible would be larger than those now in operation.

Lieutenant Commander Charles E. Rosendahl, foremost navy dirigible expert and former commander of the Los Angeles, expressed belief today the ideal dirigible of the future might be three times as large as the R-100. Development of what may be the ideal size, however, will only be accomplished gradually, Rosendahl said.

One great advantage of larger aircraft, Rosendahl believed, will be greater safety.

"The larger airship will be much easier to handle both in the air and on land, for it is not reasonable to suppose that nature will increase the violence of storms as we increase the size of our airships," he said.

PAN-AMERICAN GROUP PROPOSED BY CUBAN

Scientific, Business Organization To Promote Peace Is Urged.

BY H. E. KNOBLAUGH, Associated Press Correspondent.

HAVANA, Aug. 7.—(AP)—Scientific organization of businessmen in the 22 countries comprising the Americas, with the elimination of selfishness and petty jealousies in the interest of common progress, is the somewhat novel plan offered by Dr. Miguel Varona Y. Guerrero, as a solution to the present economic crisis.

Dr. Varona is one of Cuba's best known economists and in his long career has been civil judge, consulting attorney to the department of public works, chief of the national secretariat and for the last three years director of customs.

He proposed the organization, on a technical basis, of the private actions of businessmen of the Americas by territorial divisions, technical associations, technical functions, consultative technical bodies, specialized universities, and technical experts trained in a central institute.

Eight "natural regions" would be created, as follows: North Region—Canada and the U. S. A.; South Pacific Region—Chile, Bolivia, North Pacific Region—Peru, Colombia and Ecuador; Southern Region—Argentina, Uruguay, Paraguay; Atlantic Region—Brazil, Venezuela; Central American Region—Panama, Honduras, Nicaragua, Salvador, Costa Rica; Region of the Gulf of Mexico—Mexico, Cuba, Guatemala; Antillean Region—San Pedro de las Roca and Haiti.

Pan-American universities and a technical institute would be established to train men under the most advanced principles of economics. From the graduates of these institutions would be drawn the personnel of continental economic community which would serve as the superior board of the organization.

This board would be non-political in character and would work on a basis of co-operation among private corporations and businessmen; its objective would be the knowledge and general; and it would work in accord with a specially outlined "code of civilized economy."

It would "harmonize the economic whole of the regional divisions, study and resolve on its own initiative after hearing resolutions offered by the regions, and its ruling would take the form of recommendations binding to the letter, the unlimited autonomy of the affected nations notwithstanding, when there is a matter of vital interest to the organization as a unit."

"It is a postulate," Dr. Varona says, "that physical force is a declining power in civilized countries. No matter if the world is arming, the real forces of future activity will be applied scientific knowledge, to commerce, industry and international relations."

"Our America presents a proper field for their application, and Pan-

3 Bridges Approved By War Department

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—(AP)—The war department today announced reapproval of plans of three bridges to be constructed in Kentucky at Ashland, Maysville, and Carrollton.

The bridges were authorized by congress in 1928 and plans were approved in that year and in 1929 by the war department. The approval has been given by the war department in order that the bridges may fall under the act of June 18, 1930, containing provisions under which construction may be facilitated by state financing.

Pile Sufferers

End Your Misery Without Salves or Cutting

External treatments cannot permanently end Piles. Nor does cutting remove the cause.

The cause is internal—bad circulation of the blood in the lower bowel. The veins are flabby—the bowel walls weak—the parts almost dead. To quickly and safely rid yourself of piles an internal medicine must be used to heal and strengthen the affected parts.

Dr. J. S. Leonhardt, a specialist, after years of study discovered a real internal Pile remedy. He named his prescription HEM-ROID, and prescribed it for 1,000 patients, with the marvelous record of success in 999 cases, and then decided every Pile sufferer should be able to get HEM-ROID from their own druggist.

Don't waste time on external remedies or think of the pain and expense of an operation. Get a package of HEM-ROID from Jacobs' Pharmacy with their guarantee of money back if it does not end all Pile misery.—(adv.)

BETTER TIMES SEEN FOR DIXIE FARMERS

Many Growers Make Crops
at Small Cost, Land Bank
Official Tells Association.

In some sections of the four states of Georgia, Florida, North and South Carolina covered by the Third Federal Land Bank district, farmers are making crops more cheaply than in any year since 1914, R. J. Taylor, secretary of the bank, told a group meeting of representatives of farm associations Thursday at Decatur, in the twelfth of a series of nineteen such gatherings being conducted by the district bank.

"This," the speaker pointed out, "together with the spread of diversification of farm crops and the production of more cash crops, indicates a turn for the better in the farming business. Farmers are improving their own position and are abandoning the idea that the government or any other agency is going to solve their problem."

Farm labor is cheaper and plentiful, according to Mr. Taylor, who contended that unemployment in the four states in this district "is not alarming." Cheap money, he added, should serve to aid the manufacturer, merchant and farmer.

"The large sums being expended in building roads not only are affording many farmers part-time employment," he declared, "but they tend to increase the value of farms and improve the farmer's market, and thereby enhance his income."

"Back to Farm."

Return to the farm of a large number of urban citizens was indicated in the statement of the bank's secretary that during the last six months the bank, acting through the National Farm Loan Associations in the four states in this district, has sold 184 farms as compared with sales of only 29 during the first half of 1935.

"During the first six months of this year," he said, "the bank received many more inquiries for farms and sold many more farms than it did during the first half of 1935. During the last month it sold approximately $140,000 worth of properties. This indicates that there is a demand for farms at prevailing prices and I shall be surprised if, during the next month, the sale of farms does not show a material increase over a year ago."

"There comes a time in every market when it is wise to buy and when it is wise to sell. When farm commodities drop below the cost of production it usually is a safe time to buy. Likewise, when farm lands reach such low prices that one can easily figure a good return on them over a series of years, it is time for farmers to purchase farms. I believe such a time is right now."

Farm Prices Better.

"In some parts of the United States farm prices actually are registering an advance. I believe farms in many places are selling today at below their actual value judged by their income-producing capacity over a series of years."

Other speakers included Roy C. Sasser, secretary-treasurer of the Muscogee National Farm Loan Association, Columbus, who declared that the 12 federal land banks are carrying on the books at an amount equaling only 1.4 per cent of the total loans outstanding all farms acquired through foreclosure proceedings. That the co-operative farm mortgage system is a marked success, he added, is proved "by the fact that since organization the banks have found it necessary to foreclose only 3 1/2 out of each 100 loans made, 36 1/2 loans out of each 100 remaining in good condition."

D. F. Lufburrow, state forester of Alabama, outlined the states potential forest value, declaring that "there are 23,750,000 acres of potential forest acreage in Georgia, or 63 per cent of its total area, and about 60 per cent of them is found in the wood lots of farmers." He urged protection against fire.

W. S. Marbut, former secretary of the group of farmers in the Decatur association area, was elected chairman, succeeding Harry Wright, of Rome, succeeding Harry Wright, of Rome, M. D. Collins, of Fairburn, was named secretary for the ensuing year.

The bank officials will meet with a similar group at Thomaston today; Albany next Monday; Waycross Tuesday and go into Florida for subsequent meetings.

Defense Wins Point In Campbell Fight

NORFOLK, Va., Aug. 7.—(AP)—The scene of the government's battle for removal of Herbert M. Campbell, Virginia real estate man charged with the murder of Mary Baker, young Washington government clerk, on April 11, from the Alexandria jail to Washington to stand trial, shifted from Alexandria to Norfolk today and back again.

Judge D. Lawrence Groner in federal district court, before whom the plea for change of venue was sent by U. S. Commissioner J. Barton Phillips in conference last night, ruled that the government's claim that a warrant and an indictment are of equal dignity in granting a change of venue was correct but ordered that the case be sent back to Commissioner Phillips in order that the defense might be given an opportunity to offer rebuttal testimony.

The decision is a partial victory for the defense and will result in virtually a preliminary hearing of the murder charge before Commissioner Phillips at Alexandria.

Bandits Stage Daylight Holdup in Capital

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—(AP)—Four armed bandits held up the messenger of the J. G. McCrory five-and-ten-cent store tonight and with hundreds of bystanders looking on, escaped in a waiting automobile with $1,200.

The store messenger, emerged from the downtown store at 6 o'clock to deposit the day's receipts in a nearby bank. As he stepped out on the crowded sidewalk, three men snatched the money from him at the point of a gun and jumped into a Maryland automobile, operated by a fourth man.

It was the fourth daylight robbery here in recent days. A bank messenger was robbed of $4,000 on the street last Friday, while the day before $7,000 was snatched from a hospital nurse.

BIRMINGHAM, N. D., Aug. 7.—(AP)—Four men held up the Dakota National Bank and Trust Company today and escaped with silver and currency, estimated by bank officials at $30,000.

AIR TOPICS FEATURE INSTITUTE OF POLITICS

Many National Problems
Discussed by U. S.
Scholars.

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., Aug. 7.—(AP)—Aircraft and the uncertainty existing regarding their potentialities in war has revised and confused the entire problem of limitation of armaments, E. P. Warner, editor of Aviation, and former assistant secretary of the navy in charge of aeronautics, told the Institute of Politics today.

In an address before the limitation of armaments conference of the institute, Mr. Warner said that popular terror of possible bombardment of undefended cities has given new interest to measures for reducing the hazard of war, while technical difficulties in the way of limiting aircraft have added complications to the limitation problem.

The aircraft-carrying ship has assumed great offensive power, he declared, and has presented a new threat not only to enemy naval vessels but to national territory.

"Confusion has been multiplied by the adoption of a most unfortunate, vague and illogical definition for aircraft carriers in the treaty of Washington, and the definition unhelpfully perpetuated in slightly more undesirable form in the recent London treaty," he said. "If the delegates preparing those documents had, as a whole, had a proper comprehension of the potentialities of aircraft in war at sea, they could never have defined the aircraft carrier in a fashion which constitutes an open invitation to evasion of the spirit and to the covert increase of aircraft carrier tonnage disguised for eligibility in the category of cruisers of capital ships."

Admiral Arthur J. Hepburn, a member of the American delegation at the London naval conference, declared that those who advocate disarmament, rather than limitation and reduction of armaments, are regarding the cause of peace and "defeating their own objects." Limitation of armament conferences have produced far greater results in furthering the cause of peace than all the work "devoted to sweeping armaments into oblivion," he stated.

Dr. Jesse S. Reeves, of the University of Michigan, addressing the roundtable on "Pan-American Problems," of which he is leader, characterized the work of the Rockefeller Foundation in eliminating disease in Caribbean countries as "the best Pan-American policy the United States has ever had."

Professor Edwin F. Gay, of Harvard, advocated the practice of birth control in Japan as the only method by which she may solve her present economic difficulties of an increasing population in a relatively small area. He pointed out, however, that family organization is so strong in Japan that "it is not practical to expect she will quickly control this increase, and she will feel the pinch in the interim."

Dr. Paul Mantoux, author and official interpreter at the Paris peace conference, discussing France's maintenance of a standing army, said: "Conscription and national defense are one thing in the mind of the French democracy and will remain so as long as the very notion of national defense is not altered by a radical change in the international order."

Spanish War Vets Will Pay Honor To McCoy, Harris

An event characterized by Commander William M. Hainston, as the "biggest day" in the history of Lee-Roosevelt Camp, United Spanish War Veterans, will be held at the Red Men's Wigwam on Central avenue at 2:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon when Major General Frank R. McCoy will be inducted in as a regular member and United States Senator William J. Harris will be made an honorary member.

Mr. Hainston Thursday urged all members to attend the meeting. It is the object of the commander to enroll all veterans of the Spanish-American War as active members.

Among the invited speakers, Sunday are: Dr. Sam W. Small, James Kevin, Major John S. Cohen, William Schley Howard, Colonel John P. Hanson, Fred Mylius and Francis E. Murphy. The Atlanta Police band will be invited to furnish music for the occasion.

Mt. Gilead Meeting Drawing Big Crowds

The largest attendance in the 96 years of its annual encampment has been noted at the Mount Gilead camp meeting being held near Ben Hill, on the Campbellton road, it was stated Thursday by leaders.

Dr. Walter Anthony, pastor of Wesley Monumetual church, of Savannah, is the leading preacher at the meeting. Services are held at 10:30 a. m., 3 p. m. and 7:30 p. m. daily. The feature of each day is the big congregational sings at night under the direction of Charlie Tillman.

Free Flowers, Seeds Barred to Officials

Free flowers, seeds, bulbs, fertilizer and labor no longer will be furnished by the city park department gardens to city and county officials, under an order given Thursday by Councilman John A. White, chairman of the park committee of council. The order was sent to E. P. Whitley, acting general manager of parks, and contained instructions for dismissal from the city employ of anyone violating the order.

Chief Asked by Wire To Meet Visiting Fire

ROME, Ga., Aug. 7.—(AP)—Telephone calls announcing fires are almost daily occurrences with the Rome fire department but a telegram asking for assistance in fighting a blaze is something else again.

Fire Chief Taylor was somewhat surprised when the local station agent called him and said he had a telegram for the chief requesting him to meet a freight train at the Maple street crossing and assist in fighting a "carload of fire."

The chief cranked up and went to the scene. In a few minutes the train rolled in, a box car blazing. The fire was quickly extinguished.

The crew had discovered the fire caused by a hot box several miles up the line and wired for assistance, running into Rome before the car was consumed.

SON OF THE GODS

By REX BEACH

INSTALLMENT I.

Sam Lee stood at the open window of his apartment overlooking the park and the very fact that the window stood open gave him a feeling of freedom which amounted almost to intoxication.

He was restless, eager, dissatisfied, elated. His notes on today's lectures needed elaboration but—it was spring; a gay rebellion had broken out in him, a thousand mischievous tongues were whispering in his ears, his thoughts were as untried as wild horses. Who was it who defined a college lecture as a process by which the contents of a professor's notebook are transferred by mechanical means to a student's notebook without passing through the mind of either? No matter, it was a good definition and particularly true at this season of warm sun and bursting buds.

There was his brand-new Hispano-Suiza standing at the curb below. People invariably stopped to admire it and at this moment Sam could make out a group of figures on the sidewalk near the car. He could hear their voices. Girls' voices! Laughter! The telephone tinkled discreetly, then came May's soft "Allo!" A moment and he entered the living room, bowed and announced:

"Mister Spogum calling you, sir." May was a Korean; the simplest English names were baffling to him.

Sam went into the hall, took the instrument and spoke.

"Hello, Sam!" came a cheerful voice. "This is Spud-Gorham. Are you working?"

"Not yet. I was just getting ready."

"Say! There's some skullduggery afoot: I'm downstairs with Kicker and three dogs. They're outside, now, petting your petting wagon. You'd better come down; we found a moth stamping around on it. They'll ruin the paint—I mean those moths."

Sam laughed and framed a pleasant comment, but Sam talked through his words:

"It's too nice a night for the movies and anyhow Kicker and I are down to our last eggs. You sound like a fellow who'd enjoy taking us all for a ride. Girls and everything. Am I right?"

"Think of it, Sam; we couldn't make a borrow in front of them! You'll save money by going."

"Aw, come on! They're nice. James! They won't stick gum under the seats."

"Are you sure it would be all right?"

"Certainly!" Mr. Gorham spoke with heartiness. "Absolutely okay! It'll be a polite expedition in search of scientific knowledge and no parking whatever. They'll have to be home early. Make it snappy, Sam, before they change their alleged minds."

Sam Lee called for his polo coat and a few moments later he ran down the steps of the apartment house and joined the group on the sidewalk. He was greeted enthusiastically by Spud Gorham and Kicker Wade, who introduced him with something of a theatrical flourish to their three companions. The latter were no little impressed at meeting the owner of a $15,000 car.

All of them addressed him simultaneously and in some confusion, at which Kicker said breathlessly:

"Don't let royalty rattle you, girls. Cut out the high voice and talk in the natural register. Sam is a timid, flickering spark and he wouldn't blaze if you fanned him."

"What a beautiful car, Mr. Lee."

"Aren't you afraid somebody will steal it?"

"I'll ride with Mr. Lee. Unless one of you would prefer—"

"Go ahead," Gorham addressed the last speaker while he lowered the folding seats in the tonneau. "You're intellectual and so is Sam. He's the mental giant of the sophomore class and he does all our heavy thinking. He's full of exciting gossip. Eh, Sam?"

Sam Lee's white teeth gleamed as he fitted his key to the lock and pressed the starter. "I'm not a gladiator at small talk," he admitted, "but I'm a thrilling listener."

"It makes me nervous to ride with a driver who talks too much," declared the girl at his side. "My, this car runs like silk, doesn't it?"

There followed a moment or two of general chatter. Then Wade gained attention:

"Say, people! How about some close harmonizing while we get better acquainted? Who knows the words to something? Anything? I'm a tiger on tunes but words bother me."

One of the girls began to hum the chorus of a popular song and the others joined in.

After a while the girl at Sam's side—she believed her name was Hart, but he was not sure—asked him:

"Where is your home, Mr. Lee?"

"New York."

"I'm a westerner . . . Bartonville, Ohio!"

Sam looked at her and again his teeth shined in a smile. "I was born in San Francisco," said he.

There was an interruption from the quarter in the rear. A moment and Sam looked back. Hart addressed him in some curiosity:

"I thought wealthy fellows like you always put up at the frat houses."

"A good many do. I don't belong to any fraternity."

There came a gale of laughter from the back seats. Kicker, Spud and their two companions were talking like parrots.

A traffic policeman grinned and waved his hand at the silent running car and its noisy occupants. "Those youngsters yonder were out for a good time, a flask on every hip, no doubt, and he bet they'd give some bicycle cop a race before they doctored."

Through the upper end of the city and out into the country Sam drove. Sam Lee felt enormously grateful to his two friends for inviting him to join their party. It was nice of them to admit him to such close fellowship with them and to introduce him to their girls, for he was a pretty lonely person. It was nice of the girls, also, to treat him so graciously. Miss Alice was her given name, had quite recovered from her first constraint and was exerting herself to be agreeable. She no longer shrank over against her end of the seat as if he had measles; on the contrary, she took the wheel wherever the road was open and at such times her body pressed close to his, her shoulder rested against his chest. Her hands were soft and warm and velvety and when they touched his he was acutely conscious of unaccustomed sensations.

A dog rushed out from a farmhouse gate and raced along beside the running board. Kicker Wade waved his cap and jeered at the animal as it fell behind, then with a sudden change of tone announced that he was hungry. Gorham inquired irritably:

"Why bring that up?"

"How can I help bringing it up? Say—y! Don't kick me! If you want to step on my foot, step on it under a table with a napkin in your neck. That dog makes my mouth water; he started a sequence of thought. Remember Professor Anstine's lecture on thought sequences? He calls it successiveness. Thought flows like a stream of water and one channel leads into another. Follow me. Dog! Running dog! Dog overheat! Hot dog! Plural, hot dogs! . . . With mustard! Ain't culture wonderful?"

Somebody suggested it would be fun to get a bite somewhere and then dance for an hour.

Came another panicky protest from the bankrupt Gorham aimed at his pal, Wade:

"Hunger is good for people. It sharpens their intellects and Lord knows yours needs it. Kicker. For me, I couldn't eat a thing. So help me!"

But Wade was shameless in money matters, financial obligations rested upon him as lightly as thistle-down. With no hint of embarrassment he declared: "We won't press you, big boy. Live on your fat like a bear, if you will, but I famish. Having fasted since dinner time, my brain grows feverish, fancies come and go, visions pass before my eyes. Beautiful visions like those that tantalize the thirsty traveler in a desert. Look! . . . I see a swell roadhouse. It's all up. There's music in the air. And smells! Smells of Welsh rabbits! . . . Do I dream? Is it all a cruel mirage? But no, six people are entering that heavenly roadhouse and I am one of them. They are led by a handsome, open-handed youth in a polo coat. Who is this princely fellow? Is it—? . . . It is! It is—Sam Lee!"

Above the laughter Wade went on in a hollow voice: "Are we his guests? I—can't make out. I think I see him lending me money to pay the check. Yes—And now the scene changes; comes the dawn. It is tomorrow. I am returning Sam's loan."

"There's no doubt, now, it's a mirage," Gorham asserted.

A Quitter Never Wins

deserted. Now, what do the rest of you think about it?

Evidently the rest thought a great deal about it, to judge from the way their tongues flew. Such a racket is they made! And one and all, they seemed to think that Jim Crow should be punished; that he should be given the most dreadful of all punishments.

In his short life Jim Crow had more than once been badly frightened; but never had fear taken possession of him as it now did. He was sitting in the top of a very small pine tree.

In the trees all about and on the ground were the members of the flock to which his father and mother belonged. There were Crows to the right of him, Crows to the left of him, Crows in front of him and Crows behind him. Wherever he looked he saw Crows. And he didn't like the way those Crows looked at him. Indeed, it gave him a most uncomfortable feeling. He wished they wouldn't look at him at all.

At first, Jim Crow couldn't understand what it was all about, but after he listened for a while to the talk of the other Crows and they all did a very great deal of talking—he began to understand that it had something to do with his having left the flock and gone back to Farmer Brown's.

Apparently, the other Crows didn't like it at all. They said so, and they said so in a way that left no doubt that they meant just what they said. "He is a deserter!" said one old Crow. "He has deserted his own kind."

He has gone to live with the enemy of the Crows, and what he has done is to bring shame on all of us."

"But Farmer Brown's boy isn't an enemy," protested Jim Crow, whereupon he was told to keep still. It seemed as if the Crows there talked at once, as they ordered him to hold his tongue. Even Blacky the Crow, his father, and Mrs. Blacky, his mother, seemed to think that he had done something very wrong.

"What is the punishment for a deserter?" cried an old Crow.

"He shall be killed and all his feathers pulled out," cried two or three young Crows together.

"Of course, it wasn't his fault in the beginning," said Blacky. "He was pulled out," cried two or three young Crows together.

"That was all right," replied one of the oldest crows. "That was quite all right. But after what he has done, he is the unpardonable sin. Had he been taken away, we could have forgiven him. But he wasn't taken away; he deserted. Now, what do the rest of you think about it?"

"But Farmer Brown's boy isn't an enemy," protested Jim Crow, whereupon he was told to keep still. It seemed as if the Crows there talked at once, as they ordered him to hold his tongue. Even Blacky the Crow, his father, and Mrs. Blacky, his mother, seemed to think that he had done something very wrong.

"What is the punishment for a deserter?" cried an old Crow.

"He shall be killed and all his feathers pulled out," cried two or three young Crows together.

"Of course, it wasn't his fault in the beginning," said Blacky. "He was pulled out," cried two or three young Crows together.

"That was all right," replied one of the oldest crows. "That was quite all right. But after what he has done, he is the unpardonable sin. Had he been taken away, we could have forgiven him. But he wasn't taken away; he deserted. Now, what do the rest of you think about it?"

Evidently the rest thought a great deal about it, to judge from the way their tongues flew. Such a racket is they made! And one and all, they seemed to think that Jim Crow should be punished; that he should

ATLANTA, GA., FRIDAY MORNING, AUGUST 8, 1930.

MAWNNIN'
By Ed Dunfarth

Frank Thomas, assistant football coach at the University of Georgia, who will succeed to Wallace Wade's megaphone at Alabama in 1931, was in Atlanta yesterday. Frank is on his way back to Athens after spending a vacation in East Chicago.

As do all loyal sons of old Notre Dame, Frank visited South Bend and Knute Rockne while in that section.

Notre Dame's new stadium is completed, he says, and is a marvelous affair. It seats 56,000 and the playing field is a deep carpet of turf. Ideal parking arrangements laid out by Rockne himself makes it possible to accommodate thousands of automobiles close to the plant.

With Chicago and all the densely populated section of Indiana to draw from Notre Dame's football teams now can play a full home schedule of big games.

RAILROAD BLUES.

From as far back as football goes in Notre Dame history, Irish elevens have been travelers. They have toured the nation from coast to coast playing their games before a greater number of people than any other football team.

They had few home and home agreements; they played nearly always on the other fellow's gridiron or on neutral ground in big cities.

Two or three early games played in the little stadium at South Bend were the only appearances the Irish made before their homefolks.

FIVE HOME GAMES.

From now on "Rockne's Ramblers" will ramble less widely. They played no games at all at home last year. This year there are five in the new stadium and next year perhaps more.

Irish elevens in the future will make no more trips than the average major team. A trip to a Notre Dame football player in years to come will be an event.

IRISH PROSPECTS "TERRIBLE."

Coach Thomas reports prospects at Notre Dame in a melancholy tone that The Man himself would admire.

Notre Dame has lost two centers, two guards, a tackle and two ends—Moynihan, Nash, Cannon, Law, Twomey, Vezie and Colerick—and one Jack Elder from the backfield. Backs can be replaced, but such linemen as those seven named cannot be picked up any day.

The schedule is as tough or tougher than any ever given the Ramblers. The ten games in order are S. M. U., Navy, Carnegie Tech, Pittsburgh, Indiana, Pennsylvania, Drake, Northwestern, Army and Southern California.

Pitt is played in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania in Philadelphia, Northwestern at Evanston, the Army at Chicago and Southern California in Los Angeles. The Evanston and Chicago games are considered home games for South Bend people.

"The Drake game is the only one that Rockne has a pretty sure chance of winning," Coach Thomas says. "The others are uncertain; can you imagine opening up with S. M. U.? Thirty forward passes S. M. U. will throw if they throw one."

ROCKNE IS WELL.

Knute Rockne is up and about now. He will be able to coach his team in person this fall. And his young men will need him sorely, it seems. There are a million backs in prospect, but linemen are scarce.

SILENT ON ASSISTANT.

Coach Thomas also stated that he had made no move toward selecting his assistant coach or coaches for the 1931 season at Alabama.

"It seems to me there is a good deal of business to be attended to in Athens this fall," he said with a grin. "Have you looked at that schedule we play? Well, then, you may know I will have no time to worry about 1931; this is 1930."

OPEN SEASON FOR RUMORS.

It seemed to be open season for reports yesterday. In addition to a report that Coach Thomas had offered Harold Drew, Chattanooga athletic director, a post at Alabama, it was rumored that "Raw Meat" Bill Rodgers had resigned as manager of the Chattanooga Lookouts. Bert Niehoff and others were tipped as successors.

Joe Engel had not heard of it at mid-afternoon. Neither had Bert Niehoff. But Bert is used to being mentioned as manager of any club that happens to lose a manager. Meanwhile, Bert is doing well, thank you, in the insurance business.

JUST DARE!

The Barons from Decatur won the state American Legion sandlot elimination tournament here and go on to the regional tournament.

Sympathy is extended to the first writer who refers to them as representatives of Greater Atlanta.

Boynton Is Beaten In Western Tourney

Julian Carr, Billy Reese and Boynton Advance in Junior Doubles Play.

DELAWARE, Wis., Aug. 7.—(Special)—George Boynton, Atlanta boy, was defeated in the quarter finals of the western boy and junior tennis championships on the courts of the St. John's Military academy here today. Jack Lynch, Taft, Cal., youngster, beat the Atlanta in two tight sets, 8-6, 8-6.

Boynton showed a marvelous fighting spirit, being down four match points in the deciding set before Lynch was able to crack one past him for a placement. Both boys elected to play a back-court driving game, only taking the net occasionally when the other had been forced clear out of the court. Lynch had a slight edge, his slightly topped drives finding the corners a bit more regularly than the flat shots that sprang off Boynton's racket. Lynch had a bit more punch in his service than was another factor in his victory.

Atlanta boys all went into the second round or better in the doubles. Boynton and Frankie Parker, 14-year-old Milwaukee sensation, drew a bye and entered the quarter finals of the boys' doubles.

Billy Reese, paired with Eddie Suter, New Orleans, formed the fourth seeded team in the junior doubles, and entered the third round with a three-set victory over Rutte and Hester. St. John's cadets, 6-1, 4-6, 6-1.

Julian Carr, Atlanta, and Don Morrison, Washington, D. C., defeated St. John and Nims after drawing a bye and entered the third round, where they met Kendall Cram, Nashville, Tenn., and William Jacobs, Baltimore, the first seeded team, tomorrow.

Youngster Pitches Perfect Game

PALATKA, Fla., Aug. 7.—(P) Lyle Buck, former Palatka High school pitcher, hurled a no-hit, no-run game for the Palatka Pals against the strong Deland team in Deland today. The Pals won, 1 to 0.

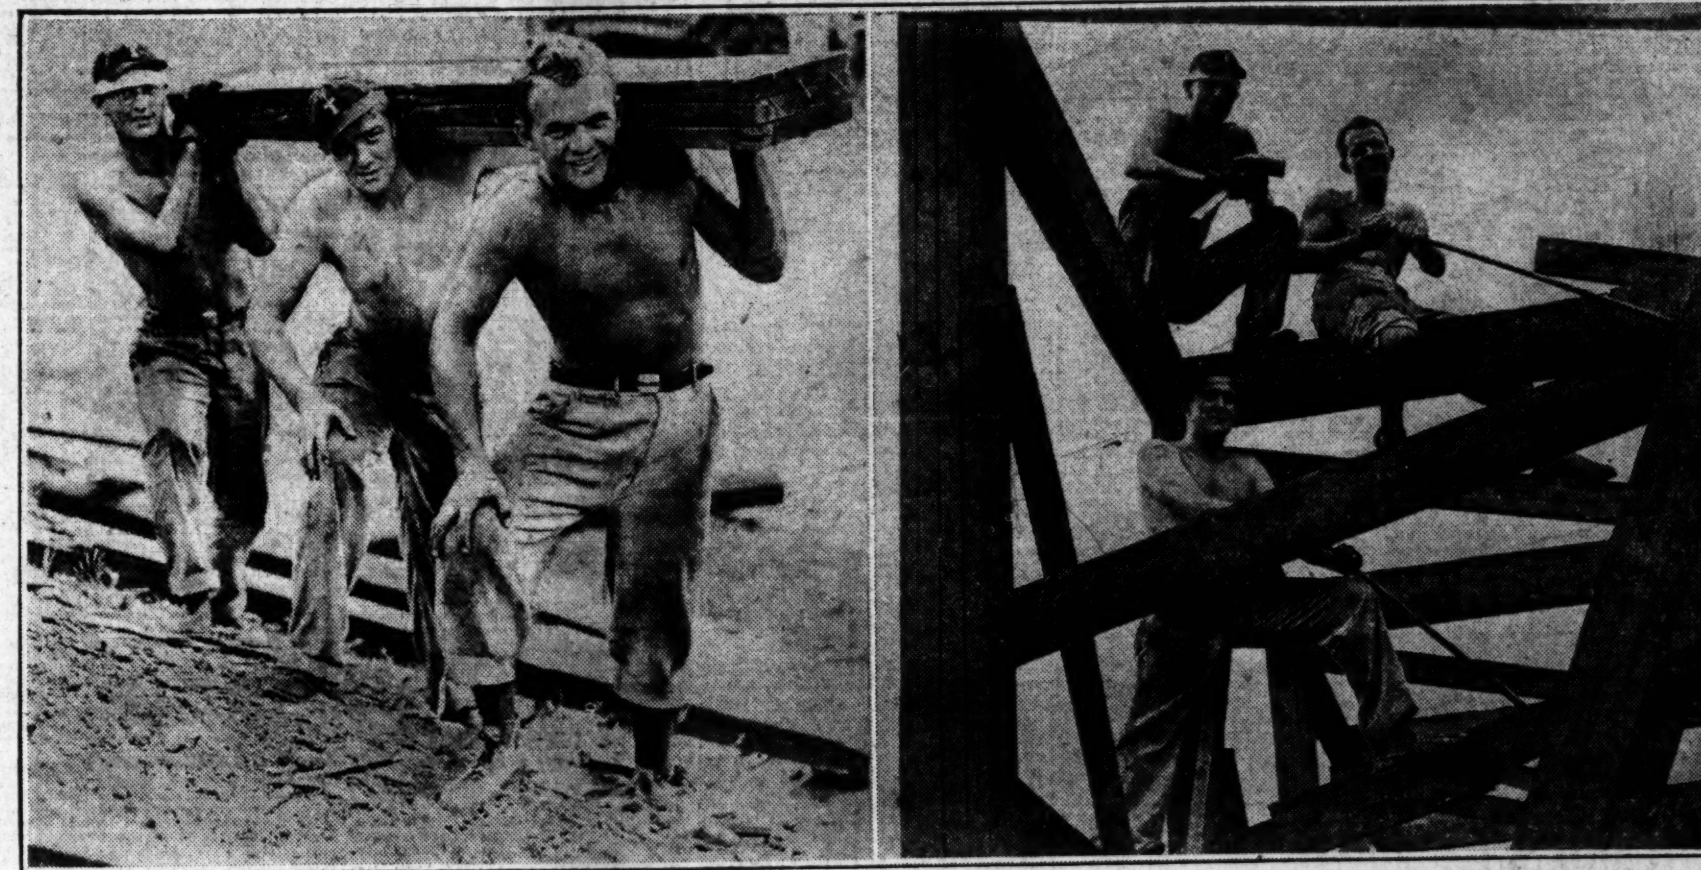

Rain halted the game at the end of the seventh. Twenty-two batters faced Buck. He issued one base on balls and struck out four.

La Barba, Mastro In 10-Round Draw

CHICAGO STADIUM, Chicago, Aug. 7.—(P)—Fidel LaBarba, Los Angeles, and Earl Mastro, of Chicago, fought ten rounds to a draw before 14,000 sweltering spectators in the Chicago stadium tonight.

Dobbs Satisfied With Club; Kreuger Deal Off TILDEN UPSET AT SOUTHAMPTON

Tech Football Players Get in Shape for Coming Season

If you had any idea that football players didn't work, take a look at the three pictured above. They are engaged in tearing down the stands at Clay field where a new dormitory and tennis courts will be placed. At the left Captain Earl Dunlap and two aides are taking a heavy piece up the embankment. Left to right, Fred (Grab) Holt, tackle in 1929;

"Shakey" Cain, called that because a boy named Cain was once called that at Georgia, and Captain Dunlap. Cain is a guard candidate. At the right the boys are at work on the stands with Cain and Dunlap wielding pinch bars and Holt sitting by with a hammer. Photographs by George Cornett, Constitution staff photographer.

DOBBS SATISFIED WITH CRACKERS

Kreuger Will Not Join Club; Lookouts Here Today.

By Ralph McGill.

Johnny Dobbs, busy with preparations to beat the Chattanooga Lookouts this afternoon at Spiller field, announced Thursday night that he would probably stand pat with the present lineup.

This means that Ernie Kreuger, former Vol receiver and now a free agent, will not be signed. It also means that there will be no pitching deals made.

"I don't think we will take Kreuger," said Dobbs Thursday. "He is a smart catcher and might help us but we seem to be winning and I guess we will finish with what we have."

The announcement after a consultation with R. J. Spiller, Cracker business manager.

SEEK THIRD PLACE.

Meanwhile the chief interest centers about the effort of the club to obtain third place, now held by the New Orleans Pelicans, and about the prospective sale of Luke Appling, brilliant Cracker shortstop.

The schedule is admirably fitted not only for taking over third place but offers an opportunity for grasping second place. There is a margin of about three games separating the Crackers from that position.

The club seems to be able to win two of the three games in the Chattanooga series which begins today. The Sunday game is to be played in Chattanooga and the Crackers then return home for three with New Orleans.

The crippled Pelicans were just so much grist for the Cracker mill last week. There is no reason why the Crackers should not displace them.

Following the Pelicans the Cracker gets the Bears for three days. Second place is no ephemeral dream. A little beating down by the Cracker will put them up there by the last of next week. Seven out of nine games to be played with Chattanooga, New Orleans and Mobile is not only possible but probable provided the Cracker put on the pressure.

FINE BASEBALL.

It Johnny Dobbs gets his club by September 14 in second or third place he will have accomplished some of the finest baseball management in his long and successful career.

Few managers can rebuild a club in mid-season. Dobbs has done so. His problem has not been an easy one, many handicaps having presented themselves at inopportune times.

Sale of Luke Appling is expected this week-end. The Cracker will probably make arrangements whereby Appling will not report until the season is over or until the club has definitely established itself in the league standings.

Junior Net Title Won by Maynard

Nelson Maynard was crowned Decatur's junior tennis champion yesterday following a straight set victory Thursday afternoon over Pierre Howard, former champion, 6-2, 6-2, 6-1.

It was a victorious revenge for Maynard who was defeated in 1929 in straight sets by Howard for the title. Maynard played a varied game. In the first few games he used a short choppy stroke to advantage and when Howard attempted to chop back, Maynard changed to a lightning drive which proved successful. His placement was a feature of the match.

KID CHOCOLATE BEATEN BY BERG

Heavier Battler Gets Decision in Furious 10-Round Scrap.

By Edward J. Neill.

POLO GROUNDS, NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—(P)—Jackie Kid Berg, a gleam of leather sweeping out from the White-chapel district of London, swept over Kid Chocolate tonight, smashed the great winning streak of the ebony "keed" with the ivory smile, and proved once again that the good big man usually can whip the good little fellow.

Berg proved his point to the satisfaction of two of the three officials who peered from the ringside at one of the wildest and most spectacular struggles the fight faithful have ever seen, but he failed to convince a majority of the 25,000 spectators who gathered in the spacious ballroom of the New York Giants. A pulsing roar of disapproval greeted the decision and for a few minutes there was considerable doubt as to just what the verdict had been.

When the final bell halted a storm of leather that had been roaring with a let-up around the canvas square under the glaring light from the clang of the opening gong, Joe Humphries, the veteran announcer, grabbed the time paper and looked at the judges. He and the two judges took a quick look and headed for Chocolate's corner. He took another look, stopped, turned and lifted Berg's hand. His own indecision was an almost perfect reflection of the varied opinions of the experts gathered down front.

It was a battle of styles, a furious affair that surged from one side of the ring to the other, rarely letting up long enough for gladiators to catch their breath. Berg fought as he always has, running into action, teeth bared, smashing and jabbing incessantly at the glistering body of the slender negro who never before has known defeat in 167 engagements.

Chocolate, if he made any mistake, threw aside his marvelous boxing at times to meet the English terror at his own game. The "Keed," giving away almost 10 pounds of weight to a full fledged lightweight, did a remarkable job in the endless exchanges at close quarters but apparently his stamina could not equal that of Berg and he tired badly in the last two rounds.

SUPERIOR BOXER.

The sensational Cuban, his sleek, polished hair rumbled beyond repair in the shock of Berg's first charge, was infinitely superior to the Englishman when he chose to box, tip Jackie off balance, and whang him on the chin with straight rights that shot Berg's head back. But in the end the eternal aggressiveness, the smashing and perpetually punching, or the young Jewish cyclone caught the eyes of the officials.

Announcer Humphries' indecision was reflected in the notes of the referee and judges. Patsy Haley gave the award to Berg along with Joe Agnello, one of the judges, while the other, the veteran Charles Mathison, voted for Chocolate. The Associated Press score sheet gave Chocolate six points and Berg four and a poll of the ringside critics found 18 favoring Berg, 9 for Chocolate, with 4 believing the decision should have been a draw.

Chocolate scaled in at 124 pounds, two pounds under the featherweight limit, and appeared strong at the weight. He conceded Berg 9-14 pounds which probably had increased considerably at ring time.

From a financial standpoint the second big open air show of the season was hardly an outstanding success despite the caliber of the mill. The gate receipts were estimated at $100,000.

BLAME RODGERS.

They blame Mr. Rodgers for everything. It would not be surprising to find him held accountable for the drought that is now burning the crops around Chattanooga.

The Lookouts did collapse completely after getting out in front at the start. The Chattanooga fans were all heated up about Bill Rodgers. They used to bring him steaks and give him bird dogs. Most every day the newspapers had pictures of Bill Rodgers accepting a bound dog of rather forlorn appearance.

Every time Bill Rodgers started sneezing on the base lines the fans would slap their hands vigorously and ask one another if they did not think Mr. Rodgers was the finest manager in the world.

BEGIN TO CRACK.

Shortly after this the Lookouts began to crack at the seams. They slipped from the lead, lingered in the first division for while and then dropped on down to the second division.

After a while the fans began to rub their eyes and ask, "Can it be that this is the same 'Bake' we used to cheer? Dear me, he

Lookout Rumor False; Niehoff Remains Same

Mildly Surprised When Told He Was Manager of Chattanooga Club.

By Ralph McGill.

Mr. Bert Niehoff counts that day lost whose low descending sun finds not his name in headlines on page one.

The former major leaguer and Cracker manager goes right along being one of the city's best insurance men despite the fact that his name keeps bobbing up as manager of some baseball club which is in a bad way.

The latest was on Thursday afternoon. "The boys just told me that I was to be manager of the Chattanooga club," said Mr. Niehoff. "This was a very great surprise to me as I was just getting ready to buy a ticket to watch Chattanooga play the Cracker Friday afternoon. Naturally if I am to be manager of the team I should not be buying tickets."

"I have heard nothing at all about it," he continued. "I have been informed this year that I was about to be manager of the Mobile club, the New Jersey club, the Newark club, and now the Chattanooga ball club."

"Never once did I know anything about it. Now, I have been trained to believe what I read in the papers, but I am beginning to have my credulity strained a bit. I am working hard at my job and like it. But it worries me the way the papers keep on making me manager of some ball club. I never know. If the papers keep on I will begin to believe that some of the sports writers in this country are not as careful to cling to veracity as they might be."

Mr. Niehoff was mentioned as one of the men who might take over the Lookouts. A Chattanooga sports writer made the announcement that Bill (Raw Meat) Rodgers, the Comanche coach, had resigned and that his successor would be named at Atlanta on Friday or Saturday.

The announcement brought an indignant protest from the Chattanooga office.

ABSOLUTELY FALSE.

"It is absolutely false," said Mr. Lucien Emerson, the secretary, who spoke in the absence of Mr. Joe Engel, the suffering owner. "Our morning paper over here is denying it," he said, "and I can assure you that Mr. Rodgers has not turned in his resignation."

All this seems to wipe out Mr. Niehoff as manager, which was no doubt quite a relief to Mr. Niehoff.

It has been no secret in Chattanooga that Mr. Bill Rodgers is a sort of white elephant. The fans cheer Mr. Rodgers in a very emphatic fashion. Every time he comes out they cup their hands and yell, "Boooooooo."

They blame Mr. Rodgers for everything. It would not be surprising to find him held accountable for the drought that is now burning the crops around Chattanooga.

FRANK SHIELDS SCORES VICTORY OVER VETERAN

Sydney Wood, Conqueror of Grant, Beats George Lott.

SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y., Aug. 7.—

(P)—Playing before a partisan crowd which enthusiastically cheered him on, Frank Shields, 19-year-old New York schoolboy, conquered Bill Tilden, national and Wimbledon champion, at 6-1, 2-6, 6-1, today in the quarter-final round of the invitation tennis tournament here.

In another upset George Lott bowed to Sydney Wood, tow-headed New York youth of 18, to complete the rout of the singles players, whom the United States sent against the French in the Davis cup challenge round two weeks ago. Wood, the conqueror of Ellsworth Vines in the Seabright tournament last week, beat Lott by scores of 6-4, 3-6, 3-7.

Frank Hunter, who ranks second to Tilden in the list of American players, downed Eddie Jacobs, of Baltimore, 6-4, 8-6, 8-4, and Wilmer Allison, of the Davis cup team, disposed of Richard Murphy, Utica, N. Y., 7-5, 6-4, in the other quarter-finals. Hunter and Allison will meet in one of the semi-finals scheduled for tomorrow, while Shields and Wood clash in the other.

Tilden's unexpected defeat by Shields marked the first time he has lost to a fellow American since he was upset by Fritz Koster in the eastern championship of two years ago at Rye, New York.

SHIELDS BRILLIANT.

When he was finally beaten, however, it was by a decisive margin. Shields played the best tennis of his career and won so convincingly as to astonish even his warmest admirers.

The beautiful volleying which carried Shields to a first ranking for the season of 1929 was the weapon with which he brought about the downfall of the 37-year-old veteran. Shields' brilliant volleying game turned back Big Bill's swiftest forward thrusts, rendered ineffectual the famous Tilden backhand and afforded the gallery with one of the most daring exhibitions of forecourt play ever seen on these turf courts.

Shields' margin in the first set was most decisive. Tilden twice losing his service as he took two games. In the second session Tilden rallied and managed to even matters by taking a set which was more closely contested than the score might indicate.

In the final set Tilden took the first game at love on his service, but this proved to be his last.

Tilden and Lott may have been a trifle below par as they arrived from Europe, but they were not at their best. Even at a difficult time to beat Shields and Wood as the youngsters played today. The lack of opportunity to be content with a narrow margin, did not appear to bother Allison, who always held the upper hand in his match with Murphy.

RODGERS STAYS, ENGEL DECLARES

Reports of Resignation of Lookout Manager Brand-ed as False.

The Babe Raises Big Six Average

Babe Ruth was the only member of baseball's slugging Big Six to improve his batting average yesterday. Although still in sixth place the Babe moved up from .350 to .362 by virtue of a timely triple against the Red Sox. In his other two times at bat he drew a pass and flied out.

Al Simmons and Mickey Cochrane, of the Athletics, made a hit apiece, the former falling off a point in the averages and the latter standing still. Activity among the Big Six was confined to the second division, the three leaders—Terry, of the Giants, and Klein and O'Doul, of the Phillies—being unchanged.

UPSETS MARK FIRST ROUNDS OF MUNY MEET

Strong Field Will Play For Grant's Georgia Tennis Crown

STATE TOURNEY SET AUGUST 25 AT EAST LAKE

Bryan Grant Out; Hines and Mooney Probable Favorites.

Several score tennis players from throughout the south are expected to compete in the Georgia state open tennis championships on the East Lake courts here the week of August 25 for the singles title left undefeated by Bryan Grant, of Atlanta.

Grant, who won the southern crown for the fourth successive year in July and later captured the national play courts diadem, is campaigning in the east this summer and will not return to answer the challenge of other southerners for his state title.

Jack Mooney, Atlanta chop stroke artist and one of the south's leading players for many years, probably will be rated as the favorite to take this year's tournament. Mooney is also in the east now playing with Grant but plans to return for the state meet.

In the event that Wilmer Hines, the Columbia (S. C.) flash, enters, he probably will be rated either No. 1 or No. 2 with the chances that he and Mooney will meet in the finals if they should be placed in different brackets. Hines has beaten Mooney several times this year, trouncing him in straight sets to win the South Carolina title.

Prominent Georgians accorded a chance to reach the finals are George Boynton, the southern boys champion; Billy Reese, Jimmie Halverson, Ralph DeMott, Jack Simpson, Albert Halverson and Judge Beavers. Harry Gault, Atlanta city champion, will also be a strong contender.

With the exception of Hines, Larry Lefty Bryan, of Chattanooga; Ed Sutter, of New Orleans, brother of Clifford, the national intercollegiate champion, and Gues Feuer, of Miami, Fla., probably will be the strongest of the out-of-state threats. Definite entries have not yet been received from these players as yet but it is thought that they probably will participate.

Although the singles competition among the men will occupy the main attention in the tournament, fast play is also expected in the other branches of play.

The men's doubles, mixed doubles, women's singles and doubles, and junior and boys' singles and doubles are also listed on the program which will continue through a whole week.

ENGEL DECLARES RODGERS STAYS

encouraged by the writer of this story, Bill Rodgers and claim it is his fault.

Meanwhile a consultation of officials was held in the office at Engel stadium. "I am ready to do whatever you want me to," Manager Rodgers told President Engel.

"You are going to stay here," President Engel said. "I haven't turned the club over to any one else to handle. When you resign it will be to me and not to someone not connected with the club in any fashion."

Secretary Lucien Emerson was highly indignant over the embarrassment to all the officials and the reflection cast on the management but refrained from saying anything for publication.

BACKED BY PLAYERS.

The members of the ball club, after discussing the unfounded story, voluntarily got up a petition signed by every member of the club stating that every player had the utmost confidence in Manager Rodgers, that he had been a real leader and a gentleman in all their relations, and that they regretted that he had been thrown into such an embarrassing situation.

The players got this statement up and sent it to the sports editor of The Chattanooga Times, unrequested, just in order to show how they stood in the matter.

Walton Fireworks Defeats Franklin

FRANKLIN, Ga., Aug. 7.—(AP)—Walton's Home-cooked Firecrackers from Atlanta defeated the locals, 8 to 5 here today. The visitors were leading, 5 to 0, in the ninth when Franklin tied the score. John Chambers, for the visitors, hit a home run with two men on base to win the ball game in the tenth. It was the first time a ball has been hit over the right field fence.

DOLAN IN RAID.

CHICAGO, Aug. 7.—(AP)—Albert (Cory) Dolan, former baseball player and coach with the New York and St. Louis National league teams, was held to the federal grand jury today under $2,500 bond in a charge of violating the national prohibition laws. The charges were made following a raid several days ago on an exclusive night club conducted by the former ball player on the near North Side.

HAGEN'S OFF YEAR.

WHEN Walter Hagen failed to qualify on Wednesday for the P. G. A. championship, which he has won five times, there was some debate as to whether he was slipping or whether he had merely stumbled into an off year. Hagen has been around a long time, but he is still far from being through. This is his 18th season of competitive golf and in that time he has won 11 major championships—five P. G. A. titles, four British opens and two United States opens.

In some way I had the feeling at Interlachen, in the last United States open, that Hagen was a trifle more casual than usual, not quite as keen. He proved in practice more than once that he was hitting the ball as well as he ever hit it before, but through the heat of the championship he seemed to be less concerned about what happened than the Hagen of old would have been. Hagen has had lapses before—some bad ones—only to rebound with an astonishing revival. Only a little while ago Archie Compston beat him by 18 and 17 in a 72-hole match and a week later Hagen turned and won the British open, leaving Compston well behind.

Mental attitude is a big part of golf. There is also the possibility that the veteran has lost some of his old confidence and few can realize how important this confidence was in Hagen's career. I recall years ago when Jim Barnes led him by six strokes in the Met open after the first 36 holes. "Well," Hagen said, "if Jim can pick up six strokes on me today, why can't I pick up six strokes on him tomorrow? Which is what Hagen did. It is doubtful if golf ever knew a greater natural competitor—one who had greater ability to keep himself alert but physically relaxed down the stretch of a championship. Hagen will still be around for some time.

THE BIG STAND.

IF THE CUBS are to have any final chance to repeat last summer's pennant clean-up, they must make big use of the next 20 days which they spend at home with the Dodgers and Giants on the road.

In this home stand the Cubs have four games with the Dodgers and four with the Giants, and they will be tackling the Braves and Phillies while their two main rivals are meeting the Cardinals and Pirates.

They stick around home cooking now until August 31, and they are usually pretty hot at home—especially when the general situation begins to steam up. But they can't afford any more lumpy spots. Their two leading rivals from the metropolitan area of the east have both shown they mean business. Both come back to spend most of September in the midst of friendly faces. All in all, this National league race is one of the warmest and closest in many years. There is a big chance that all three will be bunched down the stretch and that one or two games may decide the winning margin.

DURABLE BILL.

BILL TILDEN started his competitive season in tennis last winter. He has missed few weeks where he wasn't hustling for another victory. After the big wind-up at Wimbledon and the Davis cup matches almost anyone else would have been fagged out with tennis, thinking only of an extended rest. And almost anyone else would have been completely stale.

But Tilden again proved his durability by hopping from a boat to the test at Southampton, picking up a new competition without taking a breathing spell. Many months of tournament tennis was not sufficient to dull his keen edge, which is all the more unusual for a player up around his 37th year. That isn't old, but it is far from being tennis youth.

DIZZY COMPETITION.

THE DOWNFALL of Walter Hagen in the qualifying round of the P. G. A., which is for the professional championship at match play, recalls the fact that more than a few stars have skidded out in the wake of competition that is growing dizzier every year. It wasn't so long ago that 150, or possibly 152, would have gotten by without trouble.

But in the eastern win 146 barely made the grade. There was Willie MacFarlane, who beat Bobby Jones at Worcester just five years ago and who had just won the Met open. Willie didn't make it. There was Joe Turnesa, who lost by only a stroke to Bobby Jones four years ago at Scioto. Joe didn't make it. There was Bobby Cruickshank, who tied with Jones at Inwood. Bobby fell out. The pace has become terrific.

Many star veterans are still hanging on and the kids are coming up with a rush—headed by Horton Smith, who decided to fire a 67 in order to be sure. These qualifying tests will now become harder and harder every year.

THERE HAVE BEEN FEW BATTLES as desperate as those now under way for places on the United States' big four in polo. The battle between the east and the west has been the keenest in polo history, so far as any team selections are concerned. When the final selection is made the best tip in sight is that Tommy Hitchcock will have the four best without any preference or favor. The British invasion this time won't be as easy to roll back.

"WHAT," writes L. G., "has become of Carnera?" It's hard keeping track of these midgets. They get lost in the shuffle. But the little one will probably emerge shortly with a wagonload of kale.

CARD MANAGER IS RE-SIGNED

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 7.—(AP)—Sam Breadon, owner of the St. Louis Cardinals, National league baseball club, today announced the reappointment of Charles (Gabby) Street as manager of the team for the 1931 season.

The announcement set at rest rumors starting afloat that the Cardinals would have another new pilot next year. The team has changed managers at least once each year since 1925.

This season is Street's first as a major league manager, and Breadon has been pleased with his services, although the Cards are now in fourth place. Street formerly was a catcher for the Washington Senators, having been Walter Johnson's battery mate during the latter's hey-day as a hurler. In recent years Gabby had been managing minor league clubs.

"Street's work has been highly satisfactory," said Breadon.

Street is the first Cardinal manager since Branch Rickey to serve two consecutive terms.

Rickey, manager for several years, was relieved in June 1925 by Rogers Hornsby. Hornsby led the Cards to a pennant and a world series victory in 1926, after which he was traded to the Giants. Bob O'Farrell was next manager. Bill McKechnie relieved him after one year and McKechnie was sent to Rochester when the Cards failed to win a game of the 1928 world series. Billy Southworth was the next manager, but he was relieved in the mid-season of 1929 by McKechnie who was recalled from Rochester.

Street, who had been coach in the 1929 season, took over the reins in 1930.

Louisville Splits With Fitzgerald

LOUISVILLE, Ga., Aug. 7.—Louisville and Fitzgerald split a double bill on Academy field today, Louisville taking the first, 9 to 4, and Fitzgerald taking the second, 7 to 3. Brooks continued his hard hitting, getting seven hits in seven times at bat. Moses also gave a good account of himself with three out of four. He had to retire in the fifth with a sprained ankle.

RADIUM SPRINGS GOLF TOURNEY DRAWING STARS

Players From Nearby States Indicate Intention of Entering.

ALBANY, Ga., Aug. 7.—(AP)—Early indications point to the fastest field in its history starting the qualifying round of the annual Radium Springs golf tournament, which will be contested over the beautiful wooded and rolling course near here August 27-30.

The state amateur championship was held over this course last year and many of the participants enjoyed playing the course so well they returned for the invitation tourney last year. The 1930 event—the fourth at Radium Springs—is expected to draw both the largest and best group of golfers ever playing here.

This tournament is not limited to Georgia alone and players from nearby states have announced their intention of entering.

The qualifying round at 18 holes, medal play, will be held Wednesday, August 27. The first round of match play, at 18 holes, will be held Thursday, with the championship proper starting Friday. Both morning and afternoon rounds of 18-hole match play will be held on Friday, with the championship battles set for Saturday. The first flight championship will be at 36 holes, while the others are set for 18 holes.

One of the interesting features of this tournament is the team trophy offered to the team of four from any city which has the lowest aggregate medal score in the 18-hole qualifying round Wednesday.

Stagg's Teams Win Because Players Hate To Disappoint Him

By Walter Trumbull.

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—The first all-American football eleven was selected by Walter Camp in 1889 for a magazine conducted by Caspar Whitney. The magazine died, but the All-American thing lived.

On that 1889 team the two ends were Cumcock, of Harvard, and Stagg, of Yale. When Stagg wasn't playing football, he generally was playing baseball, and was one of the greatest pitchers in college history. But that is some time back. For the last few years—38, to be exact—Amos Alonzo Stagg has been teaching the youngsters of Chicago University to become athletes and sportsmen.

As these seasons have passed, Stagg's requirements for eligibility on teams he coached never have changed. He always has asked first for physical, but for mental and spiritual qualities. Stagg wants youngsters of high heart and gallant soul.

He hasn't always found the perfect type, but he has come as close as he could, never lowering his standard for any purpose of immediate gain. With less material numerically than many of his rivals, Stagg has turned out a surprising number of winning teams.

I think perhaps his teams win because Stagg demands so much of his men and is so sure that he will get it, that they hate to disappoint him. May his 39th season of football coaching at Chicago be pleasant.

Bob Zuppke says that he will have to build a practically new eleven at Illinois. He insists that his line material, left from last season, consists largely of third-string men and is the new material is fast, but says it is too light. This makes me smile a little, when I remember how violently Zuppke asserted, only last autumn, that he could pick a team of 100-pounders which would lick any eleven I could name.

Illinois has lost Crane, Witz, Gordon and Burdick from its line, and Timm, Peters, Mills and Humbert from the backfield, but I refuse to get very depressed over the situation. Zuppke always manages to bow up.

Leading Jockey Is First Casualty

CHICAGO, Aug. 7.—(AP)—Paul Neal, one of the leading jockeys of the Chicago district, is the first casualty of Hawthorne's racing season.

Neal was thrown from his mount, Apple Brandy, in the first race yesterday and knocked unconscious. He was cut about the head but expects to be back in the saddle in a few days.

RENE LACOSTE WILL REPLACE JEAN BOROTRA

French Star Confirms Report He Will Retire From Tennis.

PARIS, Aug. 7.—(UN)—Jean Borotra today confirmed reports that he would not play on the 1931 French Davis cup team and that Rene Lacoste would quit retirement to replace him on the squad.

Borotra, the most colorful of tennis players and member of the 1930 Davis cup team which successfully defended the historic trophy a few weeks ago, said he was "too old" and that it was "time to give the youngsters a chance."

He said he did not make his decision until definitely assured by Lacoste that the one-time world's champion would return to the courts. Just how his retirement and Lacoste's return would benefit the young players, Borotra did not explain. Any youngster with hopes to beat out Lacoste for a place on the team faces an almost impossible task, as Rene, who retired two years ago, is still considered by many experts to be one of the finest players in the world.

Lacoste won the Wimbledon singles title in 1925 and 1928; the American championship in 1926 and 1927, and was a member of the French Davis cup team in 1925, '26, '27 and '28.

Borotra said he would continue to play in tournaments save when hindered by business. He is scheduled to sail for the United States on August 19 but is uncertain whether he will compete in the American championships at Forest Hills, as business requires he be back in Paris on September 18.

Colored Tourney In Second Round

First round matches were completed Thursday afternoon in the Georgia state colored tennis championship. The tournament is being played on the Morehouse college courts and players from all sections of the state are present. All final matches will be played Saturday afternoon.

Ralph Long, southeastern singles champion, advanced to the semi-final round Thursday.

TOURISTS, 12; HORNETS, 11.

ASHEVILLE, N. C., Aug. 7.—(AP)—Asheville came from behind in the eighth inning here tonight to overcome Charlotte in a night game to win the first of the series, 12 to 11. Wild hitting, loose base running and plenty of errors entered into the battle. Earl Brown was charged with the defeat, with Johnny Chambers taking the victory. Each club employed three hurlers. Packard and Padgett were the leading hitters of the clubs, each collecting four hits in five attempts.

TARZAN AND THE LOST EMPIRE No. 23

The Emperor presented an imposing figure. Over a tunic of white linen he wore a cuirass of gold. From the shoulders fell the purple robes of the Caesars. A fillet of emerald bordered his brow. Presently a man, who appeared to be an officer of the court, addressed the officer who was with Tarzan. "Present yourself with your prisoner," he said.

As the party halted before the throne, Tarzan turned to the Bagego interpreter and said, "Ask Sublatus why I have been made prisoner and tell him I demand that he free me at once." When Sublatus heard this demand, he rose in wrath. "Who dares issue commands to Sublatus?" he cried. "Tell him," said the Emperor, "I am Tarzan of the Apes."

"Take the insolent dog away," the Emperor commanded, but when the soldiers laid hands on Tarzan he shook them off. Two others leaped toward him, one seizing his right arm, the other his left, but Tarzan swung them suddenly together with such force that their heads crashed and they sank unconscious to the floor.

It was then that the ape-man leaped with the agility of a cat to the dais where sat the Emperor. So quickly had the act been accomplished that there was no time to prevent the terrible indignity that Tarzan proceeded to inflict upon him.
